REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION,

For the Year ending March 1st, 1888.

To the Citizens of Richmond:

Agreeably with the Statute of New Hampshire, we respectfully submit the following Report for your consideration :

We have earnestly endeavored to give the greatest possible amount of schooling within the limits of the school appropriation. No. 3 and No. 4 have been accommodated at No. 5, thereby reducing our schools to six in number, each having 23 weeks of school with the exception of No. 6, the cause of which is explained in the special report of that district. Though in most instances we find this an improvement to former years, we consider it insufficient, if we would have our schools keep pace with the improvements of the age.

STATISTICAL.

We find enrolled in the several School Registers 109 different pupils, two of whom were under five years of age. The average number belonging for the year, 90 ; the average daily attendance, 83 ; number of visits by the Board of Education, 43 ; number of visits by citizens and others, 286 ; number of dismissals, 29 ; number of instances of tardiness, 84 ; number of half-day absences, exclusive of non-membership absences, 1262 ; occurring in the several districts as follows : No. 2 had 247 ; No. 5, 296 ; No. 6, 421 ; No. 7, 49 ; No. 9, 118 ; and No. 13, 31.

IRREGULAR ATTENDANCE.

We are very sorry to see so many days of schooling unimproved. We consider it a false economy to keep children from school for working purposes, or for any cause excepting sickness. There is nothing which tends so much to lessen the interest of the pupil, as irregular attendance ; and in many instances it is entirely lost.

TEXT BOOKS.

No change has been made in text books the past year, but it will probably be thought necessary to effect a change in the Readers, the coming season. Dictionaries and outline maps are well nigh indispensable helps in the school-room, and it is hoped that at least one of these necessary adjuncts may also be procured for each school.

SPELLING.

Our schools have made much greater proficiency in this branch, since the teachers have been required to keep a record of the number of misspelled words during the term. Some of these records for the past year have been excellent. Those of Nos. 2 and 7 are especially worthy of mention. The former spelled 19,490 words, and misspelled 235. The latter, with only five different pupils, spelled 11,210 words, and misspelled only 25. What school will beat this record next year ?

DISCIPLINE.

In order to have successful schools we must have good discipline. But this, of course, must commence at home. The children should be taught to obey the teacher in all her requirements, thus aiding her in what sometimes proves an arduous task. We have often heard it remarked, that children who are under no proper restraint at home, usually show a spirit of insubordination at school. This subject is one of great importance, concerning not only the present, but the future welfare of our children.

CO-OPERATION OF PARENTS.

It is just as necessary to have good schools under the present system as the old one; yet we cannot expect the best possible results without the hearty co-operation of parents and guardians; and we consider them responsible to a certain extent for the efficiency of our schools. Our teachers need to be sustained and encouraged by the frequent visits of the parents, which in most of the schools we are sorry to report numbered less the past, than in some former years. Nos. 2 and 5 set an example in this matter, which it would be well for all to follow.

TEACHERS.

We have been mainly successful in our choice of teachers. Of the eight different ones employed during the past year, all but two had had former experience in teaching; and we believe that they have all conscientiously labored to promote the welfare and best interests of their respective schools.

Heartily thanking all who have given us cordial support the past year, we will call your attention to the following Special Reports, in which (however distasteful the task,) we consider it our bounden duty to faithfully and impartially represent each school.

SPECIAL REPORTS.

SCHOOL No. 2. Both terms were taught by Miss Annie F. Comey, of Quincy Mass., who maintained good order, ruling by love rather than fear; thereby establishing a very pleasant relation between teacher and pupils. Good progress was also made in the several branches taught. Among the interesting last day exercises, by which we were particularly well entertained, was the excellent recitation of several select poems, by the class in Literature. We were also especially well pleased with the spelling record, which we give as follows: Number of words spelled, first term, 4,388; misspelled, 103. Julia A. Conway, Flora Doolittle, Alice Parker, Nettie Sprague, and Leon Putney, perfect. Number of words spelled the second term, 15,102; misspelled, 132; Leon Putney and Norah Garlsey, perfect. We also add, that 4,706 words were spelled by Will Sprague, and only one missed.

SCHOOL No. 5. Summer term taught by Miss Minnie A. Colburn, of Brattleboro', Vt., who proved herself a thorough, skilful teacher, particularly adapted to the teaching of small children, which comprised the larger part of the school. We were much pleased with the accuracy and promptness of the recitations. The infant class in Geography answered in a manner worthy of imitation by many older classes, showing the good results of the oral teaching received. Number of words spelled during the term, 3,056; misspelled, 140.

Fall term,—Taught by Mr. Edgar D. Cass, of this town, who being a beginner in the matter of teaching could not be expected to fill at first the place of an experienced teacher.

But he was very conscientious, and his earnest efforts for improvement were crowned with success. The closing examination gave gratifying proof of faithful teaching, and good progress in study. We think this a school of more than ordinary ability. A class in written Arithmetic, ten and eleven years old, were able to do practical work in Percentage and Interest, on the board, without the aid of text books, giving lucid explanations to the same. Number of words spelled, 2,796; misspelled, 129.

SCHOOL No. 6. Summer term.—Owing to the prevalence of measles in the Spring, this school did not commence until May 16th, giving only seven weeks of school, taught by Miss Lizzie M. Cass, of Keene. Notwithstanding the disorder of the preceding term, this school under Miss Cass' training was, at the time of our first visit, a model of order and system. The term was a perfect success and all was accomplished, that could be expected in seven short weeks. Miss Cass was re-engaged for the Fall term, but owing to the fact that she was subsequently the recipient of a more advantageous position, was at her own urgent request regretfully released from the engagement. Number of words spelled, 4,556; misspelled, 156.

The Fall term was under the tuition of Miss Nellie M. Roundy of Fitzwilliam. Miss Roundy's method of instruction was excellent, and good progress was made in the different branches taught. Among the several promising pupils of this school, we remarked one little miss of twelve summers, whose scholarship we think would do credit to any school in New Hampshire. The primary class were also worthy of praise, for their ready answers, and were conclusive evidences of the good instruction received. Number of words spelled, 8,713; misspelled, 150.

No. 6 has had a rather bad reputation in past years, but after the success of the summer term, to which was added the orderly appearance of the school at the time of our first visit, we were in hopes it would redeem itself. It is unne-essary to add that we were disappointed in this. It is a difficult matter to properly govern a school like this, unless the pupils by judicious home training, are taught to respect the authority of the teacher, and render her cheerful obedience. Regarding the discipline of this term, we are sorry to report, that though provided with one of the best of teachers, a few of the larger boys, by their bad, and in many instances DISGRACEFUL conduct, made it impossible for her to maintain the good order, which she would have done under different circumstances. Owing to the uncourteous treatment received, she declined teaching the three remaining weeks allotted to the school. We endeavored to procure a teacher for the remaining time, but were unable to find one willing to take the school for so short a period.

SCHOOL No. 7. Both terms were under the tuition of Miss H. Etta Fairfield, of Webster, Mass. No school in town excelled this in good order, or in the prompt, ready manner in which the recitations were given. Both teacher and pupils are deserving much praise. Number of words spelled the Summer term, 3,786; misspelled, 7. Number of words spelled the Fall term, 7,124; misspelled, 18.

SCHOOL No. 9. The Summer was taught by Miss Abbie H. Tebbets of Swampscott, Mass. A former teacher of the same school, with the same good results seen in the previous term. The order of the school was very commendable. Number of words spelled, 2,348; misspelled, 23.

The Fall term was instructed by Miss Mary Polk, of Dorchester, Mass., who, though a beginner in the work, showed a decided tact for teaching. She was systematic, patient and cheerful in the school-room, also maintained good order. Added to these qualifications, was the good ability to impart instruction. Composition writing (a branch too often neglected,) was practised throughout the term. The results of this school were very satisfactory. Number of words written correctly during the term, 4,964; incorrectly, 666.

SCHOOL No. 13. Both terms taught by Mrs. Mary E. Barden, of this town. The pupils were attentive to their various studies, thereby making good progress in them. The parents in this district are deserving of much praise for their successful effort to have their children both constant and punctual in attendance. The school register presents the cleanest record of any in town. Number of words spelled the first term, 1,798; misspelled, 45. Number of words spelled the second term 3,606; misspelled, 184. Eva E. and Ida L. Martin perfect the second term, also Percy A. Martin and Josie L. Martin, perfect for the year.

NOTE.—Besides the number of scholars given in the statistical table taken from the register, there were five of the town who attended in adjoining towns, and one pupil enrolled for the Summer term, who on account of inability to attend school for the Fall term, was taught at home.
